ANOTHER NAVAL VICTORY.

Newport, Oct. 8, 1813. This afternoon arrived at this port, His Majesty's late Packet MORGIANNA, commanded by S. Cunningham, Esq., a prize to the privateer schooner SARATOGA, Capt. Aderton. She was captured on the 21st of September, off Surinam, after an action of two hours. The SARATOGA lost her First Lieutenant and was killed and 7 wounded. The MORGIANNA had 3 men killed and 5 wounded. The latter is a brig of 400 tons, mounting 16 nine pound carronades, and two long brass 24 or 32, and manned with 15 men. The SARATOGA had 4 guns only, and 116 men, having previously thrown over 12 of her guns.

The SARATOGA carried her by boarding. The vessel was repulsed but the third time they succeeded in carrying her. Before the MORGIANNA struck, she threw overboard her Mael. She is a strong vessel and has most excellent accommodations for her crew. It had not been nearly a calm, the SARATOGA could not have succeeded in capturing her.

The SARATOGA has captured because one half (which she burnt) and one ship. She took out of the MORGIANNA the two brass pieces. Capt. Cunningham fought to desperation, and his vessel is very much shattered in her hull, masts, &c., and his first officer lost his arm.

The harbor of Newport is blockaded by 2 frigates and a sloop of war; doubtless looking out for Com. Rogers. The MORGIANNA was from Falmouth, bound to Surinam.

The MORGIANNA had no cargo of value on board except about 3,000 bushels of Irish potatoes. Copy of Capt. Cunningham's approbation of Mr. G. H. Fellows, the prize master's humane and tender conduct towards him, after capture and during his indisposition.

"It is with infinite pleasure that this opportunity is afforded me of doing that justice to your humanity and kindness which they so justly deserve, and thinking you for your attention not only to me, but the rest of the wounded of his British Majesty's late Packet MORGIANNA, since you have had the charge of that ship as prize master. I must also give you every credit for the anxiety you have shown to preserve your prize, which I assure you, I think you have done your best in both to your country and your owners. If it is ever in my future power to return your kindness to myself, I shall certainly never be forgetful of that essential duty."

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
J. CUNNINGHAM.

Mr. G. H. Fellows, Prize Master of the MORGIANNA.

THE FOUNTAIN'S BAIL.

The Fountain Boys had a fine ball last evening, a good party with plenty of music, and kept it up until about 11 p. m. Among the decorations of the room, we noticed the following couplets, containing more truth than poetry:

"When fire is called and danger's nigh,
"Goat and The Firemen," is the people's cry.
When the fire is quenched and all things righted,
God is forgot and the Firemen slighted."

PROTECTORS WERE THERE.

We neglected, unintentionally, the other day to state that Protector Steamer started for the fire on Tuesday afternoon, seventeen of the muscular members of that company drawing the engine as far as the ruins of the old Stone Factory, when they concluded they had gone for enough.

SELLING STALE BREAD.

The Quebec bakers are forbidden to sell anything except stale bread; the medical faculty having decided that new bread promotes cholera. We suggest to our friend John N. Near to supply the Canadians with his "Stalebread Biscuits," which will do away with all fears of cholera. We will vouch for John N. Near's bread as being the best and purest made in these parts.

8 HOURS A DAY.

Washington, D. C. Nov. 30, 1865. The Mechanics and Workmen's Convention of the District of Columbia, prepared a memorial to Congress, asking that eight hours be established as a legal day's work in the mechanic and labor departments of the government.

PROGRESSIVES TO OFFER CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENCY

Bull Moosers Will Have National Ticket in 1916, Latest Report.

New York, Nov. 30.—There is to be a Progressive National Convention next year. Where and when it shall be held will be determined by the National Bull Moose Committee at Chicago, January 11. This was decided yesterday at No. 30 East Forty-second street, where the executive committee of the Progressive National Committee held an all-day pow-wow.

For publication nothing was said about candidates. But it was ascertained that in the meeting the name of Col. Theodore Roosevelt was frequently mentioned. Reports having been received from several states that the Progressives there think the colonel will make an excellent standard bearer.

National Issues Next Year.

This is the statement that was issued after the meeting:

"This is the statement which has been issued after the meeting. The next election is a national one. It is on national issues that the Progressive party was born and palled its greatest victory. The national issues of 1916 will inevitably embody the salient features of the Progressive national platform of 1912.

"Believing that the great Progressive independent vote of the country is just as firmly committed to these principles as it was in 1912, the Progressives throughout the country are insistent on maintaining the organization of the Progressive party with all vigor possible.

"Therefore the National Committee of the Progressive party is hereby called to meet in Chicago on Jan. 11, 1916, for the purpose of fixing the time and place of holding the National Convention of the Progressive party to select candidates for the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the United States and to adopt a National platform."

Hope to Profit by Delay.

This means the party leaders will have a month in which to look over the ground after the National Committee of the Democrats and Republicans decide upon the dates for their respective conventions. Then, by setting a later date, the Progressives will be in a position to benefit from the knowledge of who the candidates of the other parties are to be before fixing on any candidates of their own.

Some of those present in person or by proxy were: Herbert K. Smith, Connecticut; William Pitt, Pennsylvania; E. A. Van Valkenburgh, Pennsylvania; Walter F. Brown, Ohio; Raymond Robbins, Illinois; William Allen White, Kansas; Meyer Luesner, California; George C. Priestly, Oklahoma; Everett Collins, New Jersey; Francis W. Bjord, Massachusetts; Arthur N. Sager, Missouri; F. P. Corrick, Nebraska; Edwin M. Lee, Indiana; Halbert P. Gardner, Maine; W. McClure, Georgia; and George W. Perkins, William Ham Childs, Elton E. Hooker and Horace S. Wilkinson, New York.

Perkins Enlists for the War.

Mr. Perkins addressed the New York County Committee last night at Bryant Hall. He recalled that in 1900 he polled 4,000,000 votes and held that this meant 4,000,000 independent voters had been created. The defeat of the proposed State Constitution, he said, bore out his conclusion.

"The Republican party is a party without a leader or a platform," said Mr. Perkins, "and the Democratic party is not much better off."

Reports of desertions from the Progressives were exaggerated, Mr. Perkins went on. "I've enlisted for the war, whether it be for four years, or eight years, or 12 years," he said.

Tug Hits Submerged Wreck Off Penfield

The tug Joel D. Smith, while on her way light to New York struck a submerged wreck, about three and one-half miles south of Black Rock Sunday night, breaking two of her propeller blades. The tug limped into Black Rock harbor and word of the accident was telephoned to this city. The tug Abram P. Skidmore went to her aid and towed her to New York.

ELKS WILL WELCOME LEW MADDEN TO-NIGHT

Members of Bridgeport Lodge of Elks will have a theatre party at Poli's to-night, in honor of Lew Madden, of Madden & Ford, Waterbury natives who are scoring a big hit in vaudeville. Lew Madden was formerly associated in vaudeville with James W. Fitzpatrick, another Waterbury boy, and both were big favorites here. At the Elks' Christmas tree festivities last year, Mr. Madden assisted in entertaining the children and distributing the gifts. The Elks to-night will return the compliment by saluting his delegation to welcome Mr. Madden.

Despite the war, horse racing will be resumed in France early in 1916, the Miceockey club having been authorized to hold meetings in January and February.

Mark Twain's Birthday Recalls Financial Blunders of Great Men

This is the eightieth anniversary of the birth of Mark Twain, when the citizens of Hannibal, Mo., who have erected a fine monument to his memory, join in their annual tribute of respect and admiration for the humorist and philosopher. There is not a community in the English-speaking world that does not envy the little Missouri city its pre-eminence as the early home of the gifted genius whose contributions to American literature have never been excelled.

The birthday of Mark Twain recalls the fact—recently again confirmed by the experiences of Rev. Nowell Dwight Hillis—that men of light and leading in other lines are often but the merest novices in financial affairs. The man of genius is oftener than not a "come-on" and a "sucker" in business matters. The late Dr. Clemens was involved in many disastrous business schemes, and first and last he lost a large part of the fortune he had won by the pen. The failure of the publishing house of Charles L. Webster & Co., in which he had invested his fortune, was the greatest of these blows, but by writing assiduously and making a lecture tour of the world he was able to write "Paid in Full" on every one of the accounts against that firm. Later he lost considerable sums in promoting a typesetting machine, and dropped another small fortune in the promotion of a patented food, of the merits of which he had been convinced by personal use.

Lloyd George, the great commoner of present day Britain, confessed a few years ago that he had sought to add to his fortune by investments in Marconi stocks. Ole Bull, the great Norwegian violinist and composer, purchased a large tract of land in northern Pennsylvania and attempted to found there a Scandinavian colony. The enterprise was a failure, and the "Paganini of the North" was reduced to poverty, and forced to return to his native land.

Cervantes, the immortal author of "Don Quixote," spent most of his life in abject poverty, from which he was relieved only a short time before his death. Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," was unsuccessful in nearly all of his many speculations. The elder Dumas was always in hot water over financial matters, and Balzac lost most of his money in an unfortunate enterprise for working the abandoned mines of Sardinia.

General U. S. Grant was another conspicuous example of this kind. The failure of Grant & Ward left him almost penniless, and his autobiography was written at the spur of necessity, in order to provide for his family.

Sir Walter Scott's failure as a business man was very similar to Mark Twain's attempt to play the role of publisher. The failure of Ballantyne & Co., the great publishing house in which he was largely interested, saddled him with debts aggregating over $650,000, which he attempted to pay from the earnings of his pen.

Dozens of other similar examples might be cited, and against them one can place only one instance, in which a literary man of great genius manifested an equal capacity as a financier. Voltaire, the famous Frenchman, made a fortune with his pen, and conserved and increased it by wise investments. He was at once the chief and most prosperous of European heretics and authors. His financial speculations were almost universally crowned with success, and in his latter years he was the patron of a flourishing colony of Swiss watchmakers.

The purpose of the organization, according to Chairman Horace C. Sullivan, of Anderson, Ind., is to obtain equalized delegate representation in the Republican National convention.

Resinol Soap makes good complexions

When you wash your face do you realize that it is not enough to remove the dirt—that your skin needs a soothing, healing influence to preserve the natural beauty of your complexion?

Ordinary toilet soaps do not assert this. They are made of harsh, free alkali, which tends to dry the skin and destroy its delicate texture. Even the best of such soaps can only clean, but they cannot heal and protect the skin. Resinol Soap, besides being an absolutely pure toilet soap, contains the same soothing, healing, antiseptic balsams as Resinol Ointment, the value of which in the treatment of skin affections is known throughout the medical profession.

That is why Resinol Soap does for the skin what cosmetics are supposed to do—it insures not only a clean skin, but a healthy skin, and a fair, clear complexion.

VICE-CHANCELLOR SADLER COMPARES SCHOOL SYSTEMS

Says American, English and German Are Great Representative Types.

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 30.—The merits and defects of the English system of education formed the subject of a recent lecture here by Vice-Chancellor M. E. Sadler of Leeds University, who spoke of the English, the American and the German as the three great representative types, each typical of a different point of view.

Germany stands for unity based on the state, the United States for variety based on the individual and the British Empire for an attempt at moral unity based partly on individual experience, partly on inherited tradition and partly on administrative organization, said Prof. Sadler. All three face the same human problem, and each have learned from the other two. But Germany and the United States work on simpler theories and have in the range of a simpler aim. The British view is the more complex, and British education when it falls below its best is less effective in accomplishing its aim than the others.

British education, especially the English at its best, is stronger than its rivals in the development of personal character. The care that the Germans have lavished in intellectual attainments and the Americans have spent in fusing together the diverse elements of their population, has been given in England to questions of personal conduct and character. British schools have been at least as successful as the others in fostering the will to sacrifice life and limb in times of national peril. But they have not been as successful as the German in producing the conviction that daily sacrifice must be made by the individual for the welfare of the community in the intellectual side.

Prof. Sadler found that with certain brilliant exceptions, British education as feeble as compared with the German, but not as with the American. The gravest defect in British education, according to the lecturer, is the absence of an exacting standard in the training of the mind as contrasted with the training of conduct. As the result, the importance of general knowledge and the value of pure science as applied to the needs of life and industry is not appreciated. The capricious and casual way in which the requirements of general knowledge are applied to the needs of the child; the failure of the schools to stimulate the intellectual interests of boys and girls of average capacity, which result in a waste of the mental powers of the nation and indifference toward science alike in industry, public administration and the domestic management are also serious defects.

Greek Parleys Delayed

Athens, Nov. 30.—Final solution of negotiations of the Allies with the Greek government has been further delayed, it is reported, pending reply of the Allies to the Greek proposal to permit the respective general staffs to define the military features of the Allied requirements in Macedonia.
